UNRESOURCEFUL

RESOURCEFUL

Accepts responsibility and makes choices. Feels capable, confident, resourceful, and resilient.

Evokes or provokes the will clear, confident, centered, to create in others. Feels and committed.

own capabilities. Feels supportive, Supports others in tapping their optimistic, non-attached, and a sense of contribution.

of their actions. Feels needed, responsible, attached, powerful, or superior.

Shields others from the consequences threatened, defensive, or angry.

and dominates. Feels self-righteous,

Aggressively blames, criticizes

PERSECUTOR RESCUER

Is unwilling to take responsibility. Feels powerless, overwhelmed, or hopeless. The Drama Triangle, first described by Stephen Karpman, is a widely acknowledged psychological model of human interaction that grew out of transactional analysis (TA). The work of David Emerald, author of The Power of TED (The Empowerment Dynamic), introduced a new framework that he describes as the antidote to The Drama Triangle. The practice described below helps professionals intentionally shift their mindsets and behavioral approaches in order to optimize their performance. When identified with any of the three "unresourceful mindsets," a person can find themselves trapped in The Drama Triangle. These unresourceful mindsets are closely correlated with unresourceful emotional states. Conversely, when a person shifts into one of the three "resourceful mindsets" associated with The Empowerment Dynamic, greater awareness and choices become available. It is important to understand that these mindsets or modes are fluid orientations or attitudes and not fixed personality traits.

MODE EXAMPLE MODE EXAMPLE

Victim Creator The chief characteristic of the Victim Poor me ... When in the Creator mode, one accepts I choose to ... mode is the unwillingness to take I'm not responsible ... responsibility for themselves and/or their I take responsibility for my part responsibility for oneself and/or I can't do anything about it ... circumstances and becomes a selfone's circumstances. When identified I don't know what to do ... determining agent. When identified with The outcome I'm going to create VS with this mindset, one feels "acted Why is this happening? this mindset, one feels capable, confident, upon" by some outside force, powerless, resourceful, and resilient. A Creator considers The vision I'm committed to is ... overwhelmed, or hopeless. new ideas that can be used to solve problems. The learning I'm getting from this difficult situation is ... Persecutor Challenger The chief characteristic of the Persecutor It's all your fault ... When in Challenger mode, one provokes I believe you are better mode is the aggressive assigning of I do everything around here! in others the inspiration to create. than this. blame. When identified with this mindset. What's the matter with you? One feels clear, confident, centered, Come back when you have one feels self-righteous, threatened, What were you thinking? and committed. A Challenger often spurs a solution. VS defensive, or angry. A Persecutor may Why did you do that? others to make difficult decisions that This is clearly an opportunity attempt to control or dominate by cultivate new insights or take action that for you to step up your shaming, coercing, interrogating, will lead to the development of new skills. performance. lecturing, or being critical. Rescuer Coach The Rescuer shields others from the Let me help you ... When in the Coach mode, one supports What is it that you really want? What do you see as your options? consequences of their own actions. I'll make it okay ... others by encouraging them to learn from When identified with this mindset, one Let's not fight ... their own experience and actions. When What might you be missing here? feels needed, responsible, attached I feel bad for you ... identified with this mindset, one feels What can you choose to do to to outcomes, powerful and/or superior. supportive, non-attached, optimistic, and a improve this situation? VS Failing to see others as capable, a sense of contribution. Rather than providing Rescuer thinks he/she must fix things, answers or trying to fix the problem, a Coach robbing others of the opportunity to learn finds ways to help others tap their inherent from the consequences of their choices. capabilities and resourcefulness.

PRACTICE INSTRUCTIONS

- 1. Be sufficiently mindful of your own orientations in order to quickly recognize when you are involved in a "drama dynamic."
- 2. Identify your mindset (Victim, Persecutor or Rescuer).
- 3. If you are identified with an unresourceful mindset, make the shift into the corresponding resourceful mindset using the action inquiry questions listed below:

MINDSET
Victim	>>	Creator
Persecutor	>>	Challenger
Rescuer	>>	Coach

THE SHIFT
From reacting to choosing
From tearing down to building up
From telling to asking

THE QUESTION
What do I really want?
What is my intention?
How am I seeing the other person?

©STAGEN ALL RIGHTS RESERVED HUMAN PERFORMANCE TOOLS