

Family
"Legacy of Love"

My daughter is my legacy and gift to the world. I will build her confidence and provide her the tools so that she can be all that she chooses. Most importantly, I will remind her ^{every day} that she is loved just as she is.

Honesty
"Golden Rule"

I demand honesty of myself so I can ask of it others. On days when being truthful is painful and scary I will remind myself that those feelings are fleeting while the pride in honoring your core values is permanent.

Achievement
"I think I can"

Setting challenging goals publicly and taking disciplined steps to achieve them boosts my confidence in myself and pushes me to greater heights. It also inspires those around me to push themselves.

Relationships
"They may forget what you said - but they will never forget how you made them feel"

The manner in which I treat others is the true reflection of my character and how I wish to be remembered. It is my duty to use my natural gifts of listening and validating to make the world more positive.

Community

"It's a small world after all"

It is my duty to improve my community. We all share this world and we all need to contribute to make it better. I will transfer my hopes and dreams into actions and lead by example.