

BI PRIME

Google considers this to be the most critical trait of successful teams

Shana Lebowitz Nov. 20, 2015, 2:40 PM

This week, Google published a list of the five traits that its most successful teams share.

First among them was "psychological safety."

The term was coined by Harvard Business School

Team members should feel like it's okay to take some risks. Bold Content/flickr professor Amy Edmondson, who gave a TEDx talk on the topic last year.

In the talk, she describes the experience that sparked her interest in psychological safety, or "a shared belief that the team is safe for interpersonal risk taking."

As a grad student, she was studying medical teams at hospitals in order to find out what distinguished the best performing groups. She assumed she'd find that the top teams made the fewest medication errors.

To her surprise, she found exactly the opposite: Better performing teams seemed to be making more errors than worse performing ones.

VIDEOS YOU MAY LIKE

by Taboola

Sharks aren't the deadliest creatures on Earth. Here are the top 10.

You can dip your entire body in this mud pool in Trinidad and Tobago

Octopuses are officially the weirdest animals on Earth

This bulldog is a helicopter co-pilot

At some point, she realized why: It wasn't that the best teams were making the most errors, but that the best teams were admitting to errors and discussing them more often than other groups did. In other words, what distinguished the best performing teams was psychological safety, which facilitated a "climate of openness."

So how can leaders create psychological safety in their organizations? Edmondson outlines three paths:

1. Frame work as learning problems, as opposed to execution problems.

"Make explicit that there is enormous uncertainty ahead and enormous interdependence," Edmondson says. In other words, be clear that there are areas that still require explanation and that each team member's input matters: "We've never been here before; we can't know what will happen; we've got to have everybody's brains and voices in the game."

2. Acknowledge your own fallibility.

Make simple statements that encourage peers and subordinates to speak up, such as, "I may miss something — I need to hear from you."

3. Model curiosity by asking a lot of questions.

"That actually creates a necessity for voice," Edmondson says, because team members need to generate answers.

Leaders who create psychological safety and hold their employees accountable for

FROM THE WEB

by Taboola

Say Goodbye to iPhone: This Could Be 40X Better

The Motley Fool

5 Mid-engine Corvettes That Weren't

Kelley Blue Book

SPONSORED BUSINESS CONTENT

CRM that helps you sell smarter, better, faster. Zoho CRM

CEO of 'Starbucks of Weed' "cannabis is going to take a piece of you." The Motley Fool

Buy and Hold These 6 Preferred Stocks to Generate Steady Income. Wealthy Retirement

Just Announced: $20,644 "Victory Check" program from President Trump Weiss Ratings

Buy and hold these 6 stocks to generate steady income in retirement. Liberty Through Wealth

dianomi

excellence are the highest performing. VFS Digital Design/flickr

Edmondson gives an example of what might transpire in a psychologically unsafe workplace. A nurse might suspect that a patient is being given a dangerously high dosage of medication — but might not call the doctor to check, because the last time she spoke up, the doctor questioned her competence.

Edmondson goes on to explain how psychological safety and accountability interact to produce a high-performing team in an environment where there's uncertainty and interdependence.

Leaders that allow for questions and discussions and also hold their employees accountable for excellence fall into the "learning zone," or the high-performance zone.

By contrast, leaders who only hold their employees accountable for excellence without creating psychological safety fall into the "anxiety zone," which Edmondson says can be dangerous.

And leaders who only create psychological safety without holding their employees accountable for excellence remain in the "comfort zone," which isn't typically the highest performing.

A combination of psychological safety and accountability is vital for teams to achieve their full potential.

"We need people to bring their absolute full selves to the challenging jobs ahead," Edmondson concludes.

Watch the TEDx Talk here:

Get the latest Google stock price here.

SEE ALSO: The surprising quality that separates great leaders from average ones »

DON'T MISS: The 27 jobs that are most damaging to your health »

NOW WATCH:

Here are 12 of the most important executives leading Oracle's big push to take on Amazon, Microsoft, and Google in the cloud

More: Leadership Team Dynamics Google Management ✓

Taboola Feed 🕟

Famous Prostate Doctor Tells All "It's The Best...

Sponsored by ProstaGenix

Luxury Senior
Apartments in Boerne

Sponsored by Senior Living | Search Ads

To Do This; But They...

Sponsored by Download on the app store | Slotomania™ Slots

The Cost of Senior Living in Boerne
Might Surprise You

Sponsored by Senior Living | Search Ads

U.S. Cardiologist: It's Like a Pressure Wash for Your Insides

Sponsored by Gundry MD Total Restore Supplement

BI

A former flight attendant reveals the 2 good habits that make a passenger stand out

Terrifying footage from inside the cockpit of a Boeing 737 plane shows the 5 reasons why you should avoid getting gas at Costco

7 multimillion-dollar homes that have been sitting on the market for years moments before it...

Seniors: Leftover 2018 SUVs Are Surprisingly Cheap 3 Ways Your Cat Asks For Help Sponsored by Dr. Marty Nature's Feast

Sponsored by Nation

Boerne, Texas Drivers Are Stunned By This New Rule

Sponsored by EverQuote Insurance Quotes

The Air Force's newest gunship is officially here to ruin your day

Forget San Francisco and New York — millennials
prefer these 9
smaller cities with...

This 40-second video perfectly captures why people shouldn't use their phones while driving

BI

These 10 billionaires have all gone broke or declared bankruptcy — read the wild stories of how they lost their fortunes

The 5 worst dishes you can eat at buffets, according to food safety experts

Take A Look: The Top Attorneys in Boerne

Sponsored by Nation

5 Signs Your Melanoma Has Spread

Sponsored by Health Central

Texas - New Program
Giving Solar Panels To...
Sponsored by Smart Life Weekly

ВІ

ВΙ

The 11 worst Kardashian and Jenner photo editing fails of all time

The Marine Corps' first new sniper rifle since the Vietnam War is finally ready for combat

BI

What would happen if Donald and Melania Trump got a divorce?

The Most Successful
Lawyers in Boerne: See...
Spansored by Attorneys | Search

Sponsored by Attorneys | Search Ads

This IRS Tax Law is Sweeping the U.S.

Sponsored by Birch Gold Group

Replace That AC Unit Today with Yahoo Search

Sponsored by Replace Central AC Unit | Search Ads

BI

I ate at MOD Pizza, America's fastest-growing restaurant chain, and saw why it's miles ahead of the competition

YouTube star Shelby Church breaks down how much money a video with 1 million views makes her I ate the same meal at Texas Roadhouse, Outback Steakhouse, and LongHorn Steakhouse. Here's how they compared.

Common Mistake When
Cars Are Used Less Tha...
Sponsored by Discount Drivers

This Historic Photo Has Never Been Edited. Take...
Sponsored by 22Daily

50 Abandoned Aircraft
That Haven't Been...
Sponsored by Yeah Motor

BUSINESS INSIDER

INSIDER

BUSINESS INSIDER
INTELLIGENCE

* Copyright © 2019 Insider Inc. All rights reserved. Registration on or use of this site constitutes acceptance of our Terms of Service, Privacy Policy and Cookies Policy.

Sitemap | Disclaimer | Commerce Policy | Coupons | Made in NYC | Stock quotes by finanzen.net

International Editions: INTL | DE | AUS | FR | IN | IT | JP | MY | NL | SE | PL | SG | ZA | ES