3. What primary overarching strategies, approaches, or themes do you intend to use during the next year to achieve success (as defined by your above goals and objectives)? Feel free to list three or four overarching themes, but avoid restating specific goals.
4. Considering all of your previous answers, what three to five key elements will ultimately determine success for your organization during the next year? Put another way, how will you know that the year was successful?
5. Considering all of the above, in summation, what do you envision you will have achieved professionally (ideally), at the end of the next year?

PART II: TELL THE STORY OF YOUR VISION

In this step, take your answers to the questions in Part I and aggregate them into a coherent overall description of your one-year vision. Pull the key concepts together into a coherent description of how you see your success one year out. Remember that effective vision descriptions are like telling a story (about the future) or painting a picture (with words).

PART III: FIRST DRAFT OF VISION STATEMENT (LONGER VERSION)

Next, edit your description into a well-crafted vision statement. This is an opportunity to fine-tune the language you originally used into descriptions that are more clear and compelling. Experience shows, each time a leader rewrites or edits a vision statement, it gets better. So take the time to do the multiple versions this worksheet recommends. You may want to allow a day or more between revisions to give yourself time to reflect on the concepts contained within.

PART IV: SECOND DRAFT OF VISION STATEMENT (CONCISE VERSION)

Finally, revise your vision statement once more to make it even more concise. Many of the best vision statements have only three to five sentences (short paragraph), yet contain the essence of the vision conveyed in the long-form vision descriptions.
